Tracking Error

Each of the Funds listed in the table employs a "passive" investment strategy designed to replicate the performance of its benchmark index. Some of the Funds attempt to fully replicate the index by holding all of the component securities, in approximately the same proportion as its weighting in the index. Other Funds instead use an index sampling process, holding a representative sample of securities which approximates the full index in terms of key risk factors and other characteristics. The table below excludes actively-managed funds.

Tracking error measures the volatility of the return difference between the Fund and the index. It is calculated as the standard deviation of the tracking difference between the Fund and the index (gross of fees for the trailing 36-month period, or since the Fund's inception if it does not have 36 months of performance history). Realised tracking error may vary from the anticipated tracking error, depending on a range of circumstances. These include transaction costs, securities lending income and withholding tax differences. The anticipated tracking error and realised tracking error are not expected to vary significantly under normal circumstances.

The Realised Tracking Error excludes adjustments for swing pricing.

Vanguard Emerging Markets Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to track the performance of the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, a market-capitalisation-weighted index of companies in emerging markets.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up more than 13%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index. By region, Europe performed roughly in line with stocks as a whole. The US outperformed; Asia-Pacific and emerging markets lagged but still finished in positive territory.
- In this environment, the fund's benchmark index returned 4.89% for the six months. Returns were positive in seven of 11 industry sectors, with information technology, financials and communication services contributing most to the index return.
- Among markets, Taiwan and South Korea contributed most to the index return. China, the largest market in the index with an average weight of more than 30%, detracted.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up more than 13%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index. By region, Europe performed roughly in line with stocks as a whole. The US outperformed; Asia-Pacific and emerging markets lagged but still finished in positive territory.
- In this environment, the fund's benchmark index returned 16.58% for the six months. The index is constructed from the FTSE Developed All Cap Index, which is screened for certain environmental, social and corporate governance criteria by the sponsor of the index, which is independent of Vanguard.
- All but one of the benchmark's 11 sectors had positive returns, with technology, consumer discretionary and industrials adding the most to performance.
- US stocks, which account for more than two-thirds of the index, contributed the most to the benchmark's positive performance.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard ESG Emerging Markets All Cap Equity Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to track the performance of the FTSE Emerging All Cap Choice Index.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the first half of 2023. Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt. By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets. The fund's benchmark index returned 3.98% for the six months ended 30 June 2023. The index is constructed from the FTSE Emerging All Cap Index, which is screened for certain environmental, social and corporate governance criteria by the sponsor of the index, which is independent of Vanguard.
- More than half of the 11 sectors in the index posted negative results. Real estate and health care stocks detracted the most from performance.
- Among markets, Chinese stocks, which represented about one-third of the index's market value, returned –8.32%.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard European Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by tracking the performance of the MSCI Europe Index, which is made up of common stocks of companies located in Europe.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets.
- The fund's benchmark index returned 13.59% for the six months. Of the benchmark's 11 sectors, consumer discretionary, industrials, financials and information technology contributed most to results. Real estate, the only sector with a negative return, detracted.
- Among the largest markets in the benchmark, France, Germany, the United Kingdom and Switzerland were the top contributors.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Eurozone Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by tracking the performance of the MSCI EMU Index, a market-capitalisation-weighted index of common stocks designed to capture 85% of the underlying euro zone countries' market capitalisation.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets.
- For the period, the fund's benchmark returned 15.29%. Most sectors contributed strongly to returns; standouts included consumer discretionary, information technology, industrials and financials. Energy stocks detracted slightly from performance.
- Among markets, France and Germany were the top contributors, followed by the Netherlands, Spain and Italy.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Global Small-Cap Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by tracking the performance of the MSCI World Small Cap Index, a market-capitalisation-weighted index of small-cap companies in developed countries.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the first half of 2023. Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt. By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets. The fund's benchmark index returned 7.64% for the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Results were negative in eight of the benchmark's 11 sectors. Industrials, information technology and consumer discretionary helped performance the most.
- US stocks, which accounted for more than half the index, contributed most to results.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Global Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by tracking the performance of the MSCI World Index, a market-capitalisation-weighted index of common stocks of companies in developed countries.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the first half of 2023. Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt. By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets. The fund's benchmark index returned 15.09% for the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Results were positive in 10 of the benchmark's 11 sectors. Information technology, consumer discretionary and communication services helped performance the most.
- US stocks, which accounted for over two-thirds of the index, contributed most to results, with Japan a distant second.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Japan Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to track the performance of the MSCI Japan Index, which emphasises stocks of companies located in Japan.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- The Bank of Japan followed its own path, sticking to its ultra-loose monetary policy even as inflation reached decades-high levels and economic growth picked up steam. The yen declined steeply against most currencies.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets.
- In this environment, the fund's benchmark index returned 10.54% for the six months.
- The three largest sectors in the index – industrial, consumer discretionary and information technology – contributed most to returns. Real estate and health care detracted.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Pacific ex-Japan Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by tracking the performance of the MSCI Pacific ex-Japan Index, which is made up of common stocks of companies located in the Pacific region.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets.
- In this environment, the fund's benchmark index returned –1.86% for the six months.
- Financial sector stocks, which constituted more than 35% of the index, detracted most from performance. Returns were positive in seven sectors, with materials and information technology making the biggest contributions.
- Australian stocks, which made up more than 60% of the index, contributed positively to the benchmark return. Hong Kong shares detracted most.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

Vanguard SRI European Stock Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund aims to provide long-term growth of capital by seeking to achieve the performance of the FTSE Developed Europe Index, a market-capitalisation-weighted index of common stocks of large and mid-sized companies in developed countries in Europe.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up significantly. By region, Europe and the US performed better than Asia-Pacific and emerging markets.
- For the period, the fund's benchmark index returned 11.12% for the six months. Of the benchmark's 11 sectors, consumer discretionary, industrials and technology contributed the most to results. Real estate, energy and basic materials posted negative returns.
- Among the largest markets in the benchmark, France, Germany, the United Kingdom and Switzerland were the largest contributors to performance.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

The Central Bank of Ireland requires a schedule of material changes in the composition of the portfolio during the period. These are defined as aggregate purchases of a security exceeding 1% of the total value of purchases for the period and aggregate disposals greater than 1% of the total value of sales. At a minimum, the largest 20 purchases and 20 sales must be shown; all purchases and sales must be shown if there are fewer than 20. A full listing of the portfolio changes for the period is available, upon request, at no extra cost from the Administrator.

Vanguard U.S. 500 Stock Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to track the performance of the S&P 500 Index, a widely recognised benchmark of US stock market performance that is dominated by the stocks of large US companies.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates—but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up more than 13%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index. By region, Europe performed roughly in line with the worldwide average. The US outperformed; Asia-Pacific and emerging markets lagged but still finished in positive territory.
- The fund's benchmark index returned 16.60% for the six months. Although eight of 11 sectors recorded positive returns, information technology companies accounted for more than half the index's rise. Consumer discretionary and communication services companies also boosted the benchmark – and, because it tracks the benchmark, the fund. The health care, energy and utility sectors recorded negative returns.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

1 Since-inception returns: Institutional Plus EUR Acc, 6 December 2013; Institutional Plus USD Acc, 19 December 2013.

2 Index returns are adjusted for 30% withholding tax on dividends paid by US securities.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide long-term growth of capital by investing in stocks with above-average earnings growth potential that is not reflected in their current market prices.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, however, investor sentiment had improved, with resilient economic data making the odds of a global recession anytime soon seem less likely.
- Stocks ended the period up more than 13%, as measured by the FTSE Global All Cap Index. By region, Europe performed roughly in line with the worldwide average. The US outperformed; Asia-Pacific and emerging markets lagged but still finished in positive territory.
- Powered by surging information technology share prices, the fund's benchmark returned 15.89% for the six months ended 30 June 2023. Eight of the index's 11 sectors recorded positive results. Modest declines hit energy, utility and health care companies.
- The fund performed roughly in line with its benchmark for the six months. Allocating roughly 28% of net assets to health care companies, on average – or twice the index weight – hampered relative performance, as did a cash reserve that accounted for nearly 6% of assets, on average. Although the overweighting of the market-lagging health care sector crimped performance, the fund's holdings outpaced the sector's aggregate result. The fund's investments in industrial companies also outperformed.
- The fund invested about 10% of its net assets outside the United States during the period. Because its benchmark holds only US stocks, which recorded higher returns than stocks of non-US markets, this modest stake detracted from the fund's relative performance.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

Vanguard 20+ Year Euro Treasury Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Euro Treasury 20+ Year Bond Index, a market-weighted index designed to reflect the total universe of euro-denominated euro zone treasury securities with maturities of at least 20 years and a minimum credit rating of AA–.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of further central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84% for the six months.
- The fund's benchmark index returned 3.60% for the six months.
- Germany and Austria were among the countries that performed best. Belgium and Finland were among the laggards, but they still posted positive returns.
- Bonds maturing in 20 to 30 years returned more than those maturing in more than 30 years. From a credit-quality perspective, AAA-rated bonds outperformed those rated AA.

All fund benchmark returns are in euro.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Emerging Markets Bond Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide total return while generating a moderate level of income by investing primarily in bonds of issuers in emerging-market countries.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements. The fund is actively managed and seeks to invest as described in the prospectus. The following performance information shows how the fund's returns compare with those of the J.P. Morgan EMBI Global Diversified Index, a market index that has investment characteristics similar to those of the fund.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84%.
- Bonds worldwide, as measured by the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index, returned 1.43% unhedged in US dollars for the six months.
- In this environment, the fund outperformed its benchmark, which returned 4.09% for the six months.
- The fund's outperformance was driven by its lower duration relative to its benchmark, which added value as rates moved higher. The fund also benefitted from selection within and allocation to specific markets, most notably overweights to El Salvador, Saudi Arabia, Serbia and South Africa, as well as an underweight to Qatar. Its exposure to ex-USD currencies, in particular its long exposure to the Mexican peso and short position in the Turkish lira, added value.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

Vanguard ESG Global Corporate Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg MSCI Corporate Float-Adjusted Bond Screened Index, a multi-currency benchmark that includes investment grade corporate fixed-rate bonds from both developed and emerging markets issuers.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84%.
- The fund's benchmark index returned 3.03% for the six months.
- By country, the United States, which has the largest weighting in the index, performed roughly in line with the index as a whole. The United Kingdom and Canada underperformed, while Switzerland, Spain and Germany performed better than the index as a whole.
- By sector, bonds issued by industrial companies outperformed those of utility companies and financial institutions.
- By maturity, longer-dated bonds returned more than their shorter-dated counterparts. From a credit-quality perspective, bonds rated BBB generally did better than those with higher ratings.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Euro Government Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Euro Government Float Adjusted Bond Index, a market-weighted index designed to reflect the total universe of euro-denominated euro zone treasury and government-related securities with maturities greater than 1 year.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of further central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84% for the six months.
- The fund's benchmark returned 2.42% for the six months.
- By country, Italy – which makes up close to one-fifth of the index – was the strongest performer, substantially outperforming the benchmark as a whole. Portugal, a much smaller constituent, also outpaced the benchmark. All represented countries posted gains, but the weakest performers included Germany, Finland and Austria.
- By maturity, longer-dated bonds significantly outperformed; returns were positive across the maturity spectrum. From a credit quality perspective, lower-rated bonds did best. Higher-rated bonds posted gains but did not keep pace with the benchmark. Sector-wise, Treasuries outperformed agency securities and local government bonds.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Euro Investment Grade Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg EUR Non-Government Float Adjusted Bond Index, a market-weighted index of euro-denominated, investment-grade fixed income securities, excluding euro zone treasury and government-related securities, with maturities greater than 1 year.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of further central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84% for the six months.
- In this environment, the fund's benchmark index returned 1.92% for the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Corporate bonds, which accounted for more than half of the index, held up a little better than the index as a whole. Within corporates, utilities and industrials led while financial institutions lagged. Both securitised and noncorporate debt did worse than the overall index.
- Among the larger constituents, Germany, the United States, France and supranationals posted positive returns but underperformed the benchmark as a whole.
- By credit quality, bonds on the lowest rung of the investment-grade ladder performed best. And by maturity, returns were mixed.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in euros.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Eurozone Inflation-Linked Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Global Inflation-Linked: Eurozone – Euro CPI Index, a market-weighted index of euro-denominated inflation-linked government securities within the euro zone, designed to serve as a hedge against inflation in the euro zone region, with maturities greater than 1 year.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of further central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84% for the six months.
- Year-on-year euro-area inflation continued to moderate but remained well above the European Central Bank's target of 2%. It stood at 5.5% in June, down from 9.2% in December 2022.
- The fund's benchmark index returned 4.05% for the six months.
- By country, Italian inflation-linked bonds outperformed, while their Spanish and German counterparts were the laggards, returning less than 3%.
- Eurozone inflation-linked bonds maturing in more than 10 years posted gains of more than 7%. By credit quality, securities on the bottom rung of the investment-grade ladder performed better than their higher-rated counterparts.

All fund benchmark returns are in euro.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Global Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC, and sub-managed by Vanguard Investments Australia Ltd.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Float Adjusted and Scaled Index, a market-weighted index of global government, government-related agency, corporate and securitised fixed income investments with maturities greater than 1 year.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84%.
- The fund's benchmark, which is hedged to the US dollar, returned 2.86% for the six months.
- By country, the United States, which has the largest weighting in the index, underperformed the index as a whole. The United Kingdom and Australia were also among the laggards. Other index heavyweights including Japan, Italy and Spain outperformed.
- By sector, government and corporate bonds performed better than the index as a whole, while noncorporate and mortgage-backed securities lagged.
- By maturity, longer-dated bonds did best. By credit quality, lower-rated investment-grade bonds did better than their higher-rated counterparts.

All returns cited in this commentary are based in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.
