Vanguard Global Corporate Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

The fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Float Adjusted Corporate Index Hedged, a market-weighted index of global corporate fixed income investments with maturities greater than 1 year.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84%.
- The fund's benchmark, which is hedged to the US dollar, returned 3.13% for the six months.
- By country, the United States, which has the largest weighting in the index, performed roughly in line with the index as a whole. The United Kingdom, Canada and France underperformed, while Switzerland, Belgium and Italy each returned more than 4%.
- By sector, bonds issued by industrial companies outperformed those of utility companies and financial institutions.
- By maturity, longer-dated bonds returned more than their shorter-dated counterparts. From a credit-quality perspective, bonds rated BBB generally did better than those with higher ratings.

All returns cited in this commentary are based in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Global Credit Bond Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

This fund seeks to provide a moderate and sustainable level of current income by investing in a diversified portfolio of global credit fixed income bonds.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements. The fund is actively managed and seeks to invest as described in the prospectus. The following performance information shows how the fund's returns compare with those of the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Credit Index Hedged, a market index that has investment characteristics similar to those of the fund.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of further central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84% for the six months.
- The fund lagged its benchmark, which returned 3.00%.
- The fund's duration, which was slightly shorter on average than that of its benchmark over the period, detracted as rates moved higher.
- On the other hand, security selection, mostly in emerging markets, European investment-grade corporate bonds and US high-yield bonds, was positive for the fund.

Benchmark returns in the commentary above are in US dollars.

Vanguard Global Short-Term Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC, and sub-managed by Vanguard Investments Australia Ltd.

Investment Objective

This fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Ex US MBS 1–5 Year Float Adjusted and Scaled Index, a market-weighted index of global government, government-related agency, corporate and securitised bonds, excluding US mortgage-backed securities, with maturities between 1 and 5 years.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84%.
- The fund's benchmark, which is hedged to the US dollar, returned 1.69% for the six months.
- By country, the United States, which has the largest weighting in the index, underperformed the index as a whole. The United Kingdom and Canada were also laggards. Other index heavyweights including Japan, South Korea, China and Italy were among the countries that performed the best.
- By sector, government bonds, which make up well over half the market value of the index, underperformed. Noncorporate bonds also lagged, while corporate bonds outpaced the index as a whole.
- From a credit-quality perspective, lower-rated investment-grade bonds did better than higher-rated bonds.

All returns cited in this commentary are based in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.

Vanguard Global Short-Term Corporate Bond Index Fund

Managed by Vanguard Global Advisers, LLC.

Investment Objective

This fund seeks to provide returns consistent with the performance of the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Corporate 1–5 Year Float Adjusted Index, a market-weighted index of global corporate fixed income investments with maturities of between 1 and 5 years.

Performance Summary

The Performance Summary does not form part of the Financial Statements.

- Inflation and policymakers' efforts to rein it in stood centre stage for the financial markets during much of the six months ended 30 June 2023.
- Early in the period, labour markets, consumer spending, economic growth and corporate profits held up well overall, and inflation readings in many developed markets continued to decline from recent multidecade highs. Central banks including the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank and the Bank of England continued raising interest rates – but through less aggressive hikes than in some policy meetings in 2022.
- Later, volatility picked up amid slow progress on the inflation front, banking sector turmoil in the US and Europe and concerns that the US government might default on its debt.
- By the close of the period, resilient economic data made the odds of a global recession seem less likely in the near term, although the chance of central bank rate cuts persisted.
- Although central bank action in developed markets generally pushed short-term bond yields higher, longer-dated bond yields moved less. For example, the bellwether 10-year US Treasury yield declined slightly, slipping from 3.87% to 3.84%.
- The fund's benchmark, which is hedged to the US dollar, returned 2.09% for the six months.
- By country, the US, which has the largest weighting in the index, underperformed the index as a whole, as did Canada, Sweden and the UK. Switzerland, Italy and China were among the top performers.
- By sector, bonds issued by industrial companies, utility companies and financial institutions generated very similar returns.
- From a credit-quality perspective, bonds rated BBB generally did better than those with higher ratings.

All returns cited in this commentary are based in US dollars.

All of the returns in this report represent past performance, which is not a guarantee of future results that may be achieved by the fund. For performance data current to the most recent month-end, which may be higher or lower than that cited, visit our website at http://global.vanguard.com. Note, too, that both investment returns and principal value can fluctuate widely, so an investor's shares, when sold, could be worth more or less than their original cost.

* The tracking difference between the fund return and the index return over a stated period of time can be attributed to a number of factors, including, without limitation, small differences in weightings, trading activity, swing pricing, transaction costs and differences in the valuation and withholding tax treatment between the fund and the index vendor.
